Teamwork is critical to the success of high-quality health care construction projects. To truly meet an organization’s needs, those involved with planning, design, and construction of a health care project must work together toward common goals.

The prestigious Vista Awards recognize the importance of teamwork in creating an optimal health care physical environment. Since 1993, the Vista Awards have recognized teams that work together to develop and maintain safe, high-quality health care environments; demonstrate effective and efficient communication; and rely on data-based decision-making.

This year’s winning teams, which are highlighted on the following pages, showed a unity of purpose that helped their projects from pre-planning to implementation. Teamwork and communication helped these teams overcome obstacles and create successful projects.

The winning teams will receive their Vista Awards at the International Summit & Exhibition on Health Facility Planning, Design & Construction (PDC Summit), March 16-19, in Orlando, Fla. For more information about the Vista Awards, visit www.ashe.org/vista.