

2024 ASHE

Excellence in Health Care Facility Management Award

Your health care facility management innovation enhances patient care and inspires a field.

To apply, visit: ashe.org/awards/facility\_management.
The deadline to apply is April 1.

Share your innovation. Earn recognition. Advance the field.

Eligibility. To be considered, the project representative must be a current ASHE member. Applications may be submitted by a hospital or hospital system employee, or by a consultant and/or other service provider, but a current ASHE member must be listed as the project representative.

Selection. Selections are based on project results and effect on patient care, not on size or cost. Nominations are evaluated by a select committee within ASHE volunteer leadership. ASHE's executive committee provides final approval of the committee's selected winner.

The award recipient will be notified no later than May 1. ASHE will announce the winner at the Health Care Facilities Innovation Conference (HFIC) and during National Health Care Facilities & Engineering Week.

Obligations. The winning project team may be involved in a variety of efforts that educate the field about your innovative project. Some opportunities may include participation on an ASHE committee or task force, participating in the awards presentation at the HFIC, or assisting with the development of a feature article for ASHE's Health Facilities Management Magazine.

The Excellence in Health Care Facility Management Award is one of the highest honors given by the American Society for Health Care Engineering (ASHE), a professional membership group of the American Hospital Association (AHA). Recipients of the award exemplify how facility managers and caregivers join together to identify an issue and create a proactive and viable approach that improves patient care and satisfaction through innovation in facility management operation.

2020 Award Winner

This award is more than just a statue: Winners receive recognition from health care colleagues on a national level. They have the opportunity to share their innovations and educate others. Their careers are elevated, and new experiences take shape.

Has your latest innovative approach contributed to the patient-centered goals at your organization? Share your success story with ASHE. We proudly support and recognize those who truly advance the field.

The Excellence in Health Care Facility Management award will be presented at the ASHE Health Care Facilities Innovation Conference (HFIC). Other award benefits include:

- A commemorative award for display at your facility.
- One complimentary registration for a team member to attend the Health Care facilities Innovation Conference (HFIC)
- Recognition and acknowledgment for your organization and the award winning project, including a national press release and a feature in ASHE publications.
